Super Jobs Center Leads State in Job Placements

CINCINNATI (June 5, 2008) – Nearly 4,000 workers were placed in new jobs in 2007 by the Super Jobs Center, Hamilton County’s one-stop job center, according to figures recently released by the Ohio Department of Jobs and Family Services (ODJFS). This figure represents 1,997 more placements than Ohio’s second highest producing one-stop job center, The Source in Lucas County.

Sherry Kelley Marshall, President and Executive Director of the Southwest Ohio Region Workforce Investment Board attributes the high job placement rate to the efforts of the Super Jobs Center staff who assist local employers in filling job openings and to the collaboration among partners located at the SuperJobs Center.

Chuck Walters, Center business services manager confirms that “Our placement success comes from understanding and responding to the needs of local employers. Some employers need a large pool of qualified candidates and a space for mass hiring. Others need help conducting pre-screening and testing. The Super Jobs Center can accommodate these needs and more.”

Further, data collected by Hamilton County Jobs and Family Services (HCJFS) reflects that the Center continues to excel in numbers of job placements, in the average pay rate attained by people placed through the Center and in the numbers of job seekers it serves.

“The Super Jobs Center clearly sets the statewide standard for quality and value-added work with both employers and job seekers,” affirms Kevin Holt, section chief at HCJFS.

Marshall concludes, “By working together we can achieve better results for our employers and jobseekers, providing positive impact for our local economy.”
