Governor Strickland Set to Sign Child Care Provider's Contract

Ohio Governor Ted Strickland is set to sign a first-time contract covering nearly 7,500 Ohio in-home child care providers who ratified their first Council 8 contract earlier this year.

The contract with the administration guarantees union recognition, establishes a grievance procedure, and gives in-home child care providers new rights and a voice on the job.

AFSCME Ohio Council 8 President John A. Lyall said the first-ever pact, approved by a virtually unanimous vote of union members, enables providers to address reimbursement rates, consistent pay practices, and training and operating rules with state and county officials.

"There aren't many jobs that are more important than taking care of Ohio's children," Lyall said. "Now, with this contract, in-home child care providers are going to receive the respect they've earned."

Governor Strickland, a strong advocate of early childhood development, is committed to sign the contract.

The new agreement includes the "AFSCME Child Care Provider's Bill of Rights," said Council 8 General Counsel R. Sean Grayson, who led the union's negotiating committee.

The Bill of Rights includes the right of providers to review and copy their files, to receive impartial evaluations, to require Department of Job and Family Services employees entering their home to produce identification and inform the provider if the visit is in response to a complaint or a routine inspection, and "to be treated with respect during visits, inspections and investigations," Grayson said. (See page 5)

The success in Ohio is part of a national movement among child care providers to gain dignity and a voice through AFSCME. With their own union, providers now have the power to discuss reimbursement rates, consistent pay practices, training and operating rules with state and county officials who administer these programs.

In addition to Ohio, AFSCME represents about 150,000 family child care providers in California, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

OSU 2010 Market Rate Survey

AFSCME representatives and Type B providers attended a meeting with the State of Ohio Dept. of Job and Family Services and The Ohio State University Statistical Consulting Service on November 18, 2009 over the creation and distribution of the 2010 Market Rate Survey.

The 2010 survey will effect subsidy rates beginning in 2011. The 2010 surveys are scheduled to be mailed out to providers beginning March 20, 2010. AFSCME will be communicating with providers over the coming months about the survey process.

A New Day for Child Care Providers

Union Contract Guarantees Rights

In 2006, Council 8 used its political power to help elect Ted Strickland Governor of Ohio.

As Governor, he recognized our issues and concerns, and issued an executive order granting collective bargaining rights to Ohio's nearly 7,200 Independent Child Care Home Providers (ICCHP).

Under that executive order, we organized thousands of child care providers across Ohio.

In 2007, we reached another milestone when you voted to make Ohio Council 8 your union.

Since that time your elected statewide committee has negotiated a ground-breaking contract with the Strickland administration.

The new contract guarantees ICCHPs union recognition, establishes a grievance and appeal procedure, and gives in-home child care providers a voice on the job and a seat at the table when the state considers issues affecting child care.

However, the contract's most significant improvements in working conditions are included in the provider's Bill of Rights.

The Child Care Provider's Bill of Rights

All family child care providers have:

- The right to be treated with respect and objectivity during visits, inspections and investigations.
- The right to request that all agency employees present identification during visits.
- The right to know whether a home visit is about a complaint or a routine inspection.
- The right to objective, uniform statewide standards (checklist) to be used during both routine and complaint inspections.
- The right to receive a copy of any inspection report and the right to add comments to that report.
- The right to access, review and make copies of any information in their files maintained at the State or local level.
- The right to ensure that any complaints maintained in their files are accompanied by the investigative findings and the outcome of any appeal procedure.
- The right to a union representative or private counsel at appeal procedures.
- The right to timely notice of all changes in eligibility for children in their care.
- The right to operate without discrimination on the basis of race, sex, creed, color, religion, age, national origin, ancestry, political affiliation, disability, sexual orientation, height, weight, parental or marital status, pregnancy or childbirth, union membership or participation in union activities in accordance with state and federal law.
- The right to be represented on an ongoing labor-management committee, and committees created to review proposed new rules or changes to payment procedures or reimbursement rates.
- The right to file a grievance over any breach of the collective bargaining agreement between the State of Ohio and AFSCME or allegations that a county rule or regulation is in conflict with the terms of the agreement and submit meritorious grievances to binding arbitration.

State Proposes Electronic Time and Attendance Card System

The State of Ohio is moving forward with its plan to equip each provider with an electronic swipe card reader and each eligible family with swipe cards to track time and attendance by the fall of 2010.

Under the proposal an eligible family member will be required to swipe a child in and out each time the child enters daycare to confirm that the child is eligible for care and to authorized payment.

Once the system is implemented, the State will then begin issuing payments directly to providers on a weekly basis.

AFSCME is holding discussions with the State over provider concerns with the proposed swipe card system, including concerns about card reader reliability; children whose parents do not pick up or drop off, and parents who will inevitably forget to bring the swipe card with them when they drop off their child.

AFSCME will keep providers informed about our discussion with the State

Health and Liability Insurance

Ohio Council 8 is in negotiations with several insurance companies in an effort to offer low cost group medical insurance and business liability insurance plans to providers to purchase who may not have or can not afford individual coverage.

The State of Ohio has agreed to work with AFSCME to allow insurance premiums to be deducted from subsidy payments.

AFSCME will be sending providers detailed information about these plans once an enrollment period is established.

AFSCME Tells Congress Food Program Vital to Quality Care

A FSCME is on the front lines fighting for the re-authorization and expansion of the Child and Adult Care Food Program that provides the resources providers need and the children in their care depend on.

More than any other advocacy organization “our union has been in Congress playing a key role in making sure this vital nutrition program continues to serve Ohio’s children and adults,” said Robert Davis Council 8 Political and Legislative Director.

According to Davis, AFSCME is focusing on benefits to adults, families, children and providers — including nutritional information and support for providers, and families to set healthy childhood eating patterns and help for families struggling to make ends meet by providing kids with healthy meals. The union is pushing for higher reimbursements enabling providers to include suppers or a third meal.

Approval of the measure will put money back in the pockets of providers, many of whom provide extra meals at their own expense for children in their care.

Davis said this kind of hands-on lobbying is supported by the voluntary contributions of union members to AFSCME’s PEOPLE program.

Through PEOPLE — Public Employees Organized To Promote Legislative Equality, union members can support good public policy and stand up for strong public services.

For information on joining PEOPLE, call Council 8 at 1-800-282-3014.

Union Dues and the Fair Share Fee

With the implementation of the statewide child care subsidy payment system in May, 2010, union dues and fair share fee deductions will begin for all Type A and Type B bargaining unit providers.

Under Ohio law and the terms of the collective bargaining agreement, non-members of the union are required to pay a fair share fee to the union. Dues and fair share fees are currently twenty five dollars ($25.00) per month.

If a provider does not make enough in a payment period for dues or fees to be deducted, the deduction will be delayed until the next payment period.

Given the additional benefits union members are entitled to receive, including the AFSCME Advantage Program, we encourage providers to join their fellow union members by signing the membership card included in your newsletter.
